

Fellowship and Fun at the Rotary Club of Inverness

In Rotary good-natured fun helps create an environment of camaraderie, which translates to the members pulling together at other times to make projects happen successfully.

A recent light moment found one member on the wrong side of a lively sports rivalry.

Pictured are club members pouring salt on the wounds of one colleague who brags about HIS New England Patriot football team's superiority.
